

R

2022, M° 320

320

8

Learning from

Richard Pain argues that the proposed amendments to the National Gallery's Sainsbury Wing should take heed of Venturi Scott Brown's sophisticated original design

10

Reader offer

Architecture Today has partnered with Schüco to offer readers a tour of the Milton Keynes' most iconic buildings

12

Still standing

Ian Volner analyses the cultural impact of Rudolph Schindler's extraordinary Modernist house in West Hollywood

14

Heritage

Henrietta Billings says that the results of the planning inquiry into M&S' controversial proposal to raze and rebuild its Oxford Street store could change the future of construction

17

Review

Tom Wilkinson reviews a new atlas of LGBTQIA+ places edited by Adam Nathaniel Furman and Joshua Mardell

20

Viewpoint

Martine Hamilton Knight explores the 'Pevsner way of seeing'

25

In Practice

Anna Liu and Mike Tonkin of Tonkin Liu photographed by Timothy Soar

Forum

30

Master's Field

Amin Taha delivers his verdict on Niall McLaughlin Architects' student accommodation and sports pavilion for Balliol College, Oxford

40

RCA Battersea South Campus

Herzog & de Meuron's flagship campus for the RCA looks to the future while building on successes of the past, finds Vicky Richardson

50

Kinning Park Complex

Richard Lavington applauds New Practice's sympathetic and intelligent reworking of an important community resource in Glasgow Southside

60

Schüco Excellence Awards

Projects by Niall McLaughlin Architects, *ritchie studio and Barbara Weiss Architects are amongst the winners selected by this year's jury

Works

82

art'otel Depto. de DOC. y BIBLIOTECA

Murray Levinson of Squire & Partners on the challenges of realising a bespoke 'cogwheel' façade for a new London hotel

87

Ask the expert: passivhaus

Hugh Avison of CPMG Architects answers readers' questions about passivhaus

90

Materials library

Feilden Fowles associate Ingrid Petit and senior architect Ben Higham on how the practice's approach to materiality is driven by context, craft, sustainability and technical innovation

Cover

Master's Field, Balliol College, Oxford, by Niall McLaughlin Architects. The project was the overall winner in the Schüco Excellence Awards 2022. Photograph by Nick Kane

Architecture today

2022 n°320

FADUR31159

Specification

R 31159