

2022, n° 321

R

Facultad de Arquitectura,
Diseño y Urbanismo
de DCC y BIBLIOTECA

321

Forum

Works

Specification

8

Adaptive reuse

Samantha Hardingham charts the transformation of London Zoo's Snowdon Aviary, from 1960s icon to modern-day monkey hangout

12

Still standing

Ian Volner explains how Vitra Fire Station exploded the myth that Zaha Hadid's experimental image-making was unsuited to translation into built work

14

Practice

Jonathan Morrison talks to leading practices about succession planning and how to make it effective and pain free

17

Learning from

Sarah Featherstone on how a modest community building in Cardiff challenges the way we define and measure value

20

Retrofit

Jonathan Spratt argues the case for 'keyhole surgery' in place of comprehensive retrofitting on buildings from the 1990s and early 2000s

23

Opinion

Roger Black says that local authorities need to catch up with the step change that is occurring in third-age housing

27

In Practice

Laura Mark, Keeper at Walmer Yard, London, photographed by Timothy Soar

28

LSE campus

Keith Williams charts the programme of bold, creative commissioning, including landmark projects by David Chipperfield and Feix&Merlin Architects, RSHP, Grimshaw, O'Donnell & Tuomey, and Grafton Architects, that has transformed the London School of Economics' cramped, fragmented estate into a world-class campus

48

LSE interview

Director of Estates Julian Robinson reflects on the costs, benefits and shifting priorities of the London School of Economics' ambitious building programme

58

Eddington Hotel

dRMM's hotel in Eddington, Cambridge, mediates between the University's commitment to design quality and placemaking, and evolving trends in hotel design, finds Lee Mallett

66

Ask the expert: acoustics

Ben Hancock of Oscar Acoustics answers readers' questions on acoustics

68

Materials library

Co-founders of Emil Eve Architects, Emma and Ross Perkin, explain how they harmonise craft, tradition and natural materials to deliver projects that are robust and will age gracefully

Cover

The Centre Building at LSE, designed by RSHP. Photograph by Joás Souza

Architecture Today
2022 n°321

R 31192